

Product Safety & Quality Policy

Beardow & Adams (Adhesives) Ltd supply adhesives to many different industries, including the food industry, and as such, our products must be protected in order to prevent the sale of contaminated goods.

As suppliers of materials to the food industry, it is the policy of Beardow Adams to exercise due diligence and to take all practicable measures to prevent potential problems and / or risks, such as foreign bodies, contamination or taint. This enables us to provide customers with products which are safe and legally compliant, manufactured to the defined specification, satisfy all applicable requirements, and of the highest quality.

To achieve this, Beardow Adams Management Systems are designed to meet the requirements of ISO 9001, and where defined by the scope, the BRC IoP Global Standard for Packaging and Packaging Materials. The systems are subject to continuous improvement.

The commitment to this policy will be met through providing the necessary training, resources, equipment and procedures. This policy will be subject to review at least annually, or as the result of changes to any standards or regulations to which the company complies.

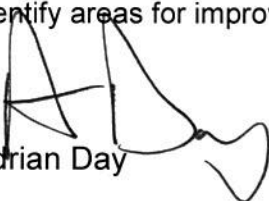

It is our aim to provide our customers with a product and level of service that meets and exceeds expectations by;

- > producing safe, high quality products that conform to specifications, right first time
- > Ensuring delivery requirements are met

To support these aims, Quality objectives will be established at each relevant functional level of the business, which are appropriate, measurable, support this policy, and facilitate the Company's aim to provide the best possible product and service to its customers.

This policy will be communicated and implemented throughout the business. Beardow Adams will review this policy on an annual basis, taking account of any changes within the organisation.

The Group CEO is accountable, through functional departmental Managers, with defined responsibilities, for ensuring that this policy is communicated, implemented and monitored to identify areas for improvement.
